

More than painting

Lufthansa Technik's Aircraft Painting Services is the competence center for all painting-related topics. Our experts support your painting layover from slot planning to release to service and cover all relevant services during the process.

Supporting your aircraft painting

We know firsthand that aircraft painting means more than a mere change of color. If you are looking for the perfect assistance in repainting and changing the livery of your aircraft or entire fleet, our aircraft painting experts will support you throughout the entire process. We take care that all legal requirements are fulfilled in accordance with Part 145 regulations – for example, with an expert on-site accompanying your painting layover and issuing the relevant release-to-service documents.

A bandwidth of services

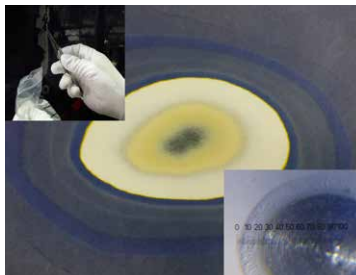

When you need aircraft painting, we are ready with a bandwidth of solutions that are tailored to your individual requirements. This starts with slot reservation and contract negotiation, covers layover support, quality monitoring and the handling of all paperwork and ends only with the acceptance procedures and release to service of your newly painted aircraft. With our experience and competence in aircraft painting, airlines, leasing companies and VIP aircraft operators can rest assured that their specific demands will be organized and handled from a single source.

Network of specialists

Our paint experts with long-term experience as spray painters and specialist engineers are your on-site representatives for painting events for all commercial and VIP aircraft types. We work together with a network of specialist painting partners, which offer their services at several locations in Europe and worldwide. Long-standing partnerships and stable cooperations at eye level ensure smooth processes and a high-quality product.
