

Lufthansa Technik Component Services Asia Pacific

Located in the heart of the fastest growing aviation market in the world, Lufthansa Technik Component Services Asia Pacific in Hong Kong is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Lufthansa Technik that specializes in providing aircraft component supply solutions. As the regional headquarters for the Component Services product division, the subsidiary offers a full scope of services for customers in the Asia Pacific (APAC) region, ranging from expert advice on parts maintenance and repair to regional customer support and logistics solutions.

Serving the continent

Established in September 2016, the company is dedicated to serving the needs of individual customers in the region and from the region. Close proximity to its Asian customers allows the company to have a deep understanding of how to add value to its products and services for the customers. Its teams are active in the areas of product sales, customer services, business development, production alternatives, supply chain and logistics.

Ideal location

Lufthansa Technik Component Services Asia Pacific benefits ideally from its location through a direct connection with Lufthansa Technik Shenzhen, the local maintenance service provider within the Lufthansa Technik Group. The proximity of the sites makes it possible to minimize transport times and costs for materials that are in need of repair, while increasing material availability.

Key facts

Founded	2016
Personnel	37
Capacity	1,230 m ²

Material supplying for the region

With a warehouse infrastructure in Hong Kong and Singapore and Lufthansa Technik Shenzhen in close proximity, the majority of material requests in APAC for all commonly operated aircraft types can be supplied from the regional warehouses. To further accelerate work processes at the warehouse site, Lufthansa Technik deploys the very latest automatic material recognition systems, such as the gate control box developed by Lufthansa Technik Logistik Services (LTLS), for which a patent application is pending.

The extensive regional component service network in APAC makes it possible to further reduce processing times and costs, and provides customers with component supply that are both rapid and need-driven.

Service Portfolio

- Component support services
- Material management
- Logistics and supply chain management
- Customer services
- Engineering support

Contact

Lufthansa Technik
Component Services Asia Pacific Ltd.
35/F, 118 Connaught Road
West Sai Wan
Hong Kong

Phone +852-3757-4400
Fax +852-3579-4622
com-sales-apac@lht.dlh.de www.lufthansa-technik.com